"DRY NAVY" SHIFTS BLOCKADE TO LAKE

Two Vessels Seized on Champlain Gives Clue to New Operations.

U. S. Agents Are Cutting Down Rum Smuggling From

Specia! Dispatch to The Star. BURLINGTON, Vt., September 9.-The "dry navy," flushed with its success on the Atlantic coast, today established a blockade on Lake Champlain which officials say will dry up one of the greatest supply sources of liquor for the United States. That the navy had a vessel operating be- quit worryin' temporarily. came known with the lodging of crews of two vessels in the Plattsburg jail charged with rum running. The methods in use are distinctly up-to-date. The vessel is one of the famous Dixie type and, although she has been kept out of sight as much as possible, she is declared to be capable of making 40 knots. This gives her the edge in speed over anything else on the lake. But in addition her crew has the assistance of an aviator who scouts the wooded shores of the lake watching for suspicious craft and keeping in touch with the enforcement crew by wireless.

The first boat captured was the Wave, an eighteen-ton craft, which was overhauled just as it was putting into a wooded cove to transfer a cargo of 3,360 quarts of Canadian ale. Three members of the crew, J. Fessette, for whom enforcement officials had been searching a long time; John Mack and Henry Potvin, were tailed, and the wet goods confiscated John Mack and Henry Potvin, were jailed, and the wet goods confiscated while the yacht was seized. En route into port with the Wave in tow, the enforcement craft sighted an unnamed twenty-six-foot cabin cruiser, two miles south of Cumberland Head, apparently stopped be-land Head, apparently stopped because of engine trouble.

Letting the Wave drift, the federal boat sped ahead to investigate. As she neared the other yacht two men jumped overboard and attempted to swim to shore. They were halted by a volley of rife shots and finally surrendered. The yacht then was searched and was found to be laden down with choice Canadian whisky. Scotch and beer. The two men captured gave their names as Tim Smith and Barney Stone, and they were also locked up at Plattsburg.

CROWN PRINCE OPPOSES By the Associated Press. Republican conferees on the administration tariff bill expect to complete their work by tonight, Chairman Mc-Cumber of the Senate managers said last night, but the conference report probably will not be ready for the House and Senate before Tuesday or Wednesday. Senator McCumber said the more highly controversial items, such as wool, sugar and dyes, remained undecided. There was no statement as to whether the valuation question finally had been determined, but it was clear that American valuation had gone into the discard except in so far as it might be made applicable by the President under the provisions of the fiexible tariff section. Under the terms of this section, as approved by the Senate, the President could declare American valuation only in the case of dyes, but it is understood that the conferees have, or will, broaden the provision to an extent which would permit the President to declare that valuation in most any case where he should deem such action necessary. Filmers Discover Village in U.S. Slumbering 100 Years

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., September 8,-Bernadote, a Rip Van Winkle town, is awakening from a century of sleep. Like those souls living "on yonder hill" above Spoon river, who were quickened into life by the im-enirodes or any modern conveniences, this town had gene on in its undisturbed way for a hundred years, sleeping quietly in a busy world, until a few days ago, when it was "discovered" by a motion picture director, and the next morning awoke to fame with a column of type in a Bloomington pewspaper.

years, sleeping quietly in a busy world, until a few days ago, when it was "discovered" by a motion picture director, and the next morning awoke to fame with a column of type in a Bloomington newspaper.

Discovered by Film Men.

C. L. Varnard, looking about for a "location" to film a country town scene, ran across the village. Half the inhabitants claim never to have seen a train. It has no picture shows, and, of course, had never seen a motion picture camera. There are no telephones and no electricity in the town. The old village grist mill is still grinding away every day with water from the same spillway that supplied the mill a century ago.

But now strange things are happening in Benadote. Big automobiles whize through the village. There is the unusual smell of oil and gasoline.

The swirling dust The swirling dust from many pneumatic tires distresses the bewildering inhabitants. Old ladies in calleo dresses no longer go their quiet way to the village store, and I o n g-whiskered old men no longer cal m I y whittle the hours away under the village trees. pecial Dispatch to The Star.
CHICAGO, Ill., September 9.—After a series of marital squaffs, which only the poetic could weather, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lee Masters left Chicago on their second honeymoon They are en route to Spring Lake. Mich., the country home, which the couple has not visited together for two years.

Their daughters, Madeline, fifteen years old, and Marcia, thirteen years old, hit the honeymoon trail with their parents, while their twenty-three-year-old son, Hardy, is already at Spring Lake, waiting for the tem-peramental author of the "Spoon River Anthology" and his newly reconciled

Although the honeymoon trail leads over the ashes of many newly burned documents—the various applications for separate maintenance and divorce which have been pending between the poet and his wife since 1920—the friends who brought about the reconciliation insist that the gentle breezes of Spring Lake will blow away the last traces of misunderstanding. Love for each other and their children, they say, has conquered the temperamental outbursts and jealousies which led to the estrangement. Although the honeymoon trail leads trangement.

Entire Family Happy. "Mr. Masters and his family are econciled at last and every one is happy over it," said Miss Harriet Munroe, editor of Poetry, and a close friend of both of the Masters.

Francis Walker, attorney for Mr. Masters, has filed the necessary papers to have set aside the long series of court proceedings pending for two years between the couple. The suggestion that the well known author had been infatuated with another woman is characterized by his counsel as "most ridiculous." For the moment at least all is peace and serene in the reunited family of the Masters.

Thus ends the domestic tempests which were first officially recorded in October, 1920. At that time Mrs. Masters filed suit for separate maintenance, declaring that her husband traveled in Europe and the orient gathering materials for his writings while she was compelled to conduct a boarding house to pay the coal bill and the education of her two daughters.

It is took a prominent part in chemical research and instructional work. He was professor of chemistry for several years at Wabash College and for a long period professor of chemistry and director of general and physical chemistry in the University of Chicago, and from 1911 to 1921 headed the department of chemistry at Columbia.

Prof. Smith was the author of numerous works on chemistry and physics and a member of various scientific so-cicties in America and Europe.
